They say the apple doesn't fall far from the tree. And, in the case of Kevyn Wynn, that's certainly true. The eldest of Steve and Elaine Wynn's two daughters, she not only shares her mother's stunning looks and impeccable sense of style, she's inherited her father's business acumen and creative genes.

"I was destined for it. I worked in retail and designed robes, T-shirts, hats, jackets and other merchandise for our family's properties," explained the mother of three when asked why she decided to embark on a career in fashion.

While out shopping with daughter Zoe, Wynn noticed a void in the footwear marketplace.

"It was August (2014) in L.A., and my daughter and I went down to the department stores to look for matching slippers. All we could find were UGGs. ... I became obsessed when I couldn't find them in stores, so I went online—I mean everything is online these day, right?" said Wynn.

After weeks of searching, and with a "clear image of her perfect slipper," she reached out to a woman who provided Wynn Resorts with robes and slippers for its hotel's guests ... and the rest, as they say, is history.

Today, the Kevyn Wynn Collection can be found in high-end boutiques and luxury spas throughout the country, including Wynn Collection (Las Vegas), Thread Count (Miami) and Montage Beverly Hills.

Made of the finest materials and hand-stitched in Italy, Wynn's eponymous luxe slipper line includes seven fashion-forward styles—each named after women who've inspired the designer along her journey.
